Trade Difficulty in Troy.

Troy, May 7.—Last evening a non-union moulder named Alexander, and a friend named Mills, not a moulder, were set upon in the street by union men and took refuge in a drug store. While the police were taking them to a place of safety they were again set upon by a mob of union men, armed with stones and brickbats. Alexander, the one of his assailants, mortally wounding him. The police station where they were quartered was surrounded nearly all night by a riotous mob, who threatened lynch law.

When moved it from its old home, the "Smothers' House," to the basement of the Presbyterian Church in the spring of 1863, and maintained it till July, 1865.

John F. Cook, jr., who had erected a new school-house on Sixteenth street in 1862, again gathered the school which the tempest of war had dispersed and continued it till June, 1867, when the new order of things had opened ample school facilities and the teacher was called to other duties. Thus ended the school which had first been gathered by "Smothers" nearly forty-five years ago, and which had been continually maintained with less than one hundred pupils, and for the most part one hundred and fifty, the only suspension

He should preach upon the subject, "The character and office of Christ," in answer to several important questions communicated to him from an eminent lawyer in the city. The morning service was upon God's great love for his children. Before the communion seventeen persons joined the church.

The evening services have been arranged according to the "new departure." The choir have consented to furnish music with the congregation, in accordance with the requests of the pastor and elders of the church, and the evangelist has called six of the poorest souls with influence to praise and inquiry meetings at close of service.

SENATE.

SATURDAY, May 6, 1876.

The CHAIR laid before the Senate a commufrom the Presidency, and quoted from Mr. dams' declaration, that so long as the breath of war was in his body he held himself liable to attachment for any acts committed by him while so in the Presidency. In reference to his remarks in the House, the impeachment of which had been quoted by Mr. Carter, Mr. H. explained that his remarks went to the propriety of calling the previous question; and what he asked for was delay, in order that so far as a subject might be properly discussed, those who now were listening to him would realize that at that very time he expressed his opinion that no doubt existed in his mind as to the rigidity.

tution. In reply to the statement that slanders were rife, &c., he said, let the slander of innocent men be met by guileless and unstained lives, but let corruption and bribery be punished with the address. Speeches were also made by Mr. Solomon G. Brown, of Uniontown, and Rev. William P. Ryder. The several Sunday schools of South Washington were present.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary.

Every body will doubtless attend the interesting meeting this evening at Lincoln Hall. The Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D., of Brooklyn, one of the most eloquent pastors in the "city of churches" will speak, and addresses will be delivered by Dr. E. M. Galsander and Rev. George A. Hall. Go if you can find a seat, and by your presence assist a worthy cause.

The following letters knock down two or three falsehoods which have lately received some currency because they appeared in the testimony of Dean General HELMNAF: " * * * I transferred the Sixth Infantry from Pope to Hancock, and it is still in the record books with the other regiments in the department of the Missouri. Six companies of it will go to Buford, relieving the Seventh, now there, which will go to the Gallatin Valley, in Montana. The remaining four companies of the Sixth will be on the advance survey of the Northern Pacific railroad for the summer. * * *

Yours, truly,
P. H. SHERIDAN,
Lieutenant General.
